

Valerie, August 26, 1894.

Stranded during night 12 miles from station. Crew were notified in morning by telephone and went to place in company with two tugs, whose lines they ran, but their efforts failed to release the vessel; rowed 7 miles to summon tug Hebard, then returned and assisted to remove ballast, to place steam pump on board, and to raise vessel with jackscrews, working three days, but without success, when the master of the Valerie decided to haul her out on the beach and repair her. When repairs were completed (September 5) again went to scene and worked two days, raising tug with jackscrews, running lines, etc., until her release at 10.30 p. M. of 6th. 45 People saved. USLSS Annual Report 1895.